

Abstract

An interlabial pad is provided to be fitted between the female labia of a wearer, specifically an interlabial pad which can be used together with a sanitary napkin, and to a wrapping body in which the interlabial pad is enclosed in a wrapping container for separate wrapping. Provided is an interlabial pad which has a basic function of keeping sanitary property that skins of wearers are not contaminated in wide areas and a sense of safety that stains on underwear can be decreased and, at the same time, can be removed sanitarily. Provided is an interlabial pad formed by bonding a permeable coating sheet and an impermeable support sheet with an absorbent body for absorbing blood being enclosed therebetween. The pad comprises a pull-up body which projects towards the body front side in the state where the interlabial pad is being fitted in the labia.